Stettler Fair.

Stettler fairly scored over the first fair they inaugurated, the date was originally fixed for Sept. 18 and 19th, but the weather at that date compelled the promoters to postpone the event until Oct. 1st and 2nd. Stettler is a go-ahead place and neither work or money was spared to make the fair a success. A short time ago the roof of the skating rink was blown off but the building was repaired and sufficiently finished to permit of the exhibits of the first fair being held under cover. On the first day rain fell during the forenoon and this in all probability interfered with the attendance but the second day was all that could be desired, and people streamed into town all morning. On Tuesday the Stettler Brass Band met the train from the south which brought in the Alix Brass Band also Dr. McIntyre M. P., W. F. Puffer M. P., P. (Lacombe) H. A. Craig (Provincial Supt. of Fairs) W. Hutton of Lacombe Experimental Farm and G. W. Smith of Red Deer. The latter gentlemen proceeded direct to the Rink and Mayor McGillivray occupied the chair and called on Dr. McIntyre to open the fair. Dr. McIntyre who was heartily received, apologized for the absence of the Premier, who had fully intended to be present but had been prevented, owing to being summoned to Toronto to have the honor of having the order of L.L.D. conferred upon him. Dr. McIntyre spoke in complimentary terms of the exhibits displayed in the building and called on the majority of the harvest prospects generally. He was of the opinion that Alberta could not be beaten for grain and crop producing. Dr. McIntyre was followed by Mr. W. F. Puffer, M. P., of Lacombe; Mr. H. A. Craig, Provincial Superintendent of Fairs; Mr. Hutton, of Lacombe Experimental Farm, and Mr. G. W. Smith of Red Deer. At the conclusion, Mayor McGillivray thanked the speakers for their support and complimentary remarks. The show of roots and vegetables was exceptionally fine and the grain both threshed and in the sheaf of excellent quality. The classes for the industrial work by ladies and children were well filled and attracted a good deal of attention. Mrs. W. F. Tranter formerly of Red Deer was one of the successful exhibitors in these classes and took 2 first and second prizes, one of her oil paintings being exceptionally good. Great amusement was caused over the Baby show for prizes given by Secretary Forbes and although Mr. Carl Stettler was deputed to judge them he backed out and appointed Mr. H. Longson of Red Deer his substitute as the latter was leaving town next day and would not again be likely to meet the ladies whose progeny did not gain a prize. Mrs. Fusons "Oriando" won easy a bright little cherub of eight months who tipped the scale at about 43 lbs. On Wednesday the fair was beautifully fine and visitors began to pour in quite early and at 10 o'clock a heavy laden excursion arrived from Calgary the train being met by the Stettler and Alix Brass Bands. After dinner the parade of prize animals took place along the Main Street. Messrs. Jacques Bros. of Ingleton Stud Farm had their bunch of thoroughbred "Suffolk Pares" which they were a great attraction throughout the fair. In the afternoon the races and sports were held and the grand stand of course was crowded. The track is a fairly decent half mile stretch and some good racing resulted. The home-sacker's novelty race for $20 brought out a big field and when they got going the dust began to rise. Capt. Cottingham had a wack at the trap shooting but did not get into money the first prize falling to H. W. Garman of Alix who shot 22 out of 25 birds.

The chief attraction at the fair was the flying machine which was exhibited by Messrs. Underwood Bros., the patentees who live near Stettler, the machine has a surface of 800 square feet and will carry two persons, it is able to travel at the rate of 40 miles per hour and the inventors they have solved the difficulty of balancing the machine, a question that has previously baffled other inventors. Taken all round Stettler's first fair was a distinct success and wound up on Wednesday by a ball in the rink.

Trenville.

Haying in these parts will be over in about two weeks.

Some one out the wire fence of Meurs, Biggs and Caldwell, letting out many of their cattle. If some one was made to pay for an act of this kind, it would put a stop to this practise in this part.

Mr. John Bennett, one of the oldest settlers in here, has disposed of his stock and machinery and rented his farm to a Mr. Goodwin. Mr. Bennett will spend the winter in Minneapolis.

Married at the home of Mrs. Coghill, on September 25th, Miss Annie, her second daughter, to Mr. F. Goynes, Stinking Lake. Among the guests were A. S. Coghill, brother, of Hillsdown, Mr. and Mrs. Kit Ray, of Hillsdown; Messrs. Duncan and James Code, Red Deer; Mrs. and Miss Goynes, Mrs. W. Goynes, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. E. Code, Misses Rhoda and Jessie Cook, all of Stinking Lake; and Mrs. J. C. Trenaman, Trenville.

Red Deer's cattle Shipment.

The Farm and Ranch Review says of the big shipment of cattle to Chicago recently by Messrs. Reed, Root, Powne and Geisinger:

It would be a fine thing for the beef industry of Western Canada should a more remunerative marketing avenue be opened, and we commend these gentlemen for their enterprise, and trust their efforts will be highly remunerative.

The Price of Flour.

The price of flour has advanced recently out of all proportion to the rise in wheat. In a little over three months the millers of western Canada have raised the price 60 cents a barrel, or about 16 per cent. Wheat during the same period only advanced about 6 and one half per cent. There is no justification for this enormous increase in the cost of this most necessary article of food for the masses and some action should be taken to see if a combine exists among the milling fraternity as it seems strange that every mill in the country should put up the price on the same day and date. This could not be done if there was not concerted action. Prices are soaring to such a height that it will in a short time be practically impossible for a poor man to live in the country.

Formal Opening.

The new public school, will be formally opened to-morrow evening at 8.30 o'clock.

The Premier of the Province of Alberta, Dr. Rutherford, has been invited to be present and address the meeting. Other members of the Provincial Government have been invited to take part in the ceremonies. A program consisting of vocal and instrumental music will be provided. It is hoped a large number of the citizens of the town will be present as an opportunity is thus afforded of inspecting the new school building which is the most complete in the west with perhaps the one exception of Calgary's new school which is not yet complete.

Evarts

The new Union Church here will be opened on October 20th. Service will be held in the afternoon at 2.30 o'clock, and in the evening at 7.30 o'clock. The speaker will be Rev. W. G. W. Fortune, of Red Deer.

Card of Thanks.

Capt. Keast wishes to thank the many friends in Alberta and the East, who were so kind to him during his recent bereavement, for their sympathy and kindly support.

The Fall Fair.

It is hoped there will be a large turnout of citizens to the Red Deer Fall Fair to-morrow. The list of prizes should draw a large number of exhibitors. Everything is about complete for a good show if the weather holds good.

English Harvest News.

One of our English friends asks us to reproduce the following as showing how they do things in England:

The Lincolnshire feat of transforming wheat into bread in four hours the other day is not in any sense a "record," says the "Manchester Guardian." It has been beaten at least twice within the last few years. On Whitehouse Common, near Erdington, in Warwickshire, the same feat was accomplished in three hours and a half six years ago. But this was a dilatory performance compared with that which took place shortly afterwards on Mr. Taylor's farm at Blokeley, in Worcestershire. Reaping began on a field of wheat at nine o'clock in the morning. Some portion of this was carried to the farm, threshed and winnowed. It was then taken to the mills, cleaned, ground, and dressed. The flour was then hurried to the bakehouse, made into bread, baked, and some of it taken to the reapers and eaten in just sixty minutes after it had fallen.

THE LAW IGNORED.

The Railway Act declare that railways must, according to their powers, furnish adequate and suitable accommodation for the receiving and carrying of all traffic offered.

What accommodation has Red Deer for passengers and freight? The poorest town on the line has no worse.

It is simply disgraceful to compel a lady to go into the Red Deer station to buy a ticket, when there is a crowd at the depot. Especially if it is disagreeable weather. The little stuffy hall does not give a person hardly room to turn around, and when it is cold or wet, there is not standing room generally. Most of the travelling public prefer standing on the platform to crowding into such uncomfortable quarters.

So is it with the freight. Any large shipment has to be taken direct from the cars as there is no room in the small space used mostly for baggage.

It is high time the C.P.R. looked into the question and furnished Red Deer with a station and freight shed worthy of the town.

Conservative Smoker.

The smoker given by the Conservative party in Alexander Hall on Wednesday evening last was a pronounced success. The hall was filled with a most enthusiastic crowd of the followers of R. L. Borden, the respected leader of the Conservative party, and a most enjoyable evening was spent in songs, speeches, recitations, music and refreshments. Messrs. McQueen and Morris rendered fine selections on piano and violin, and among those giving songs were Messrs. L. M. Gaetz, Bright, T. F. Ellis and Hadley.

SHORT ADDRESSES.

Among those addressing the meeting were Messrs. Captain Keast, W. Piper, G. W. Greene, News of the Evening, Cansell, Stephenson and Payne. Recitations were given by Messrs. Huskin and Dr. George.

Mr. Greene made a pleasant speech. He was sorry our crops were not up to the mark, but they were better than almost any where he had travelled across this continent or in Europe. He was greatly pleased to see such a splendid organization meeting for it augured well for the success of the party at the next election. If the right man was selected there would be no difficulty he thought in electing him. He got it from a very prominent Liberal that the party conceded this seat to the Conservative party. He therefore contended we must all join hands and fight a good fight when he thought Red Deer would be represented in the next House by a Conservative. He would do all he could to help the party along. He paid a high tribute of respect to R. L. Borden as a man above reproach, of high ideals, embodiment of honesty and honor. Never in the history of Canada have we been more anxious for a good man than now and he felt we had such a man in Hon. R. L. Borden. Refreshments were served during the evening. The chair was ably filled by Dr. J. Collison, President of the Red Deer local association. Over forty names were added to the list of members of the local association.

Threshermen's Protective Assoc'n.

The following rules and regulations were adopted by the Threshermen's Protective Association recently and will be carried out by all threshing outfits belonging to the Association:

- I. That farmer provide fuel sufficient to do his own threshing and to move to the next set.
- II. That farmer provide facilities for obtaining water.
- III. That farmer fix all roads into stacks on his premises.
- IV. That threshers will not pay board for man or beast on Sunday or while upon premises of farmer unless otherwise provided for.
- V. That thresher will not be responsible for damage caused by fire from his engine if said engine has to be set closer to stack or building than law requires.
- VI. That thresher will not be responsible for damage caused by fire if farmer allows smoking within 100 feet of any stack of grain, hay or straw, or any building while machine is set there.

VII. That thresher is to have a certified copy of account of threshing work done by farmer and to retain one for himself, signed by said farmer.

TAKEN AT HIS WORD.

THIS ATHEIST INVITED DEATH AND IT ARRIVED O. K.

Ada, Idaho, Sept. 28th.—Because Amos Clark, aged forty, a farmer living on the Lewiston reservation, 20 miles south of here, openly defied the Lord, he was struck dead in his front yard last night. Clark had been known as an atheist for years, and last night in the presence of his family and several neighbors said, "There is no God."

He then defied the Supreme Being to punish him. No sooner had the words left his lips than he was stricken, and died a few minutes later.

His family is composed of Christian boys and girls who have been secretly trained and instructed by the mother.

Council Meeting.

A special meeting of the Town Council was held on Thursday evening last. Mayor H. H. Gaetz in the chair. Members all present.

W. L. Waleh, C. C. wrote the council enclosing in the newspaper questions submitted him for his opinion thereon last June.

L. E. W. Ewing, Provincial Health officer wrote stating he had received communication re health by law. Filed.

The general manager of the Merchants Bank wrote promising to assist the town as much as possible in the event of the council being unable to place their debentures now offered for sale. P. W. Thorold wrote that he could be in Red Deer any time he was required for consultation, on twenty-four hours notice.

Provincial Sanitary Engineer Owens wrote the Arlington Hotel, New was used by the council. This must be stopped until authorized by the department.

The town wired they would not authorize use of sewers until finally taken over from contractors.

Councillor Botterill brought in a verbal report in response to the request made by the Fire Brigade for higher salary and favored the request explaining

He explained that he had had a talk with the chief who had pointed out the necessity of a brigade of 32 members, and that the new scale of wages was for actual practice. When he previously opposed the raise in the scale he was entirely under a misapprehension, but was now strongly in favor of the increase asked for. While the increase seemed large, the Fire Department was the least expensive in town and worthy of support as it was the most important in the way of protection to town property.

The mayor followed and advised the Council that they could do nothing better than follow the recommendation of Councillor Botterill, that although he had always been a strong supporter of the Brigade he would not recommend anything that was not absolutely necessary. Moved by Councillor Botterill seconded by Councillor Tallman, that the new scale of pay for the Firemen be granted as per their petition and that Chief Meeres be allowed to participate in the grant the same as before he became in steady employ of the town. Carried.

Councillor McKee seconded by Councillor Gaetz that the matter of Mr. J. Slade's retaining wall be left over to next spring as the petition was not in time for the estimates. Carried.

Councillor Botterill introduced a by-law for the purpose of appointing commissioners for the town of Red Deer, and defining their duties.

Council discussed the by-law in committee of the whole. Committee rose and reported progress. The town now has commissioners and the system gives satisfaction. These gentlemen relieve the heads of committees of a great deal of work, and the by-law is only confirming the action of the council the early part of the year. The by-law will come up again next meeting. Council adjourned.

HOME-MADE MEDICINE

Said to Relieve Kidney Trouble and Rheumatism

One ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion:
One ounce Compound Salutarin:
Four ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla:
Mixed and taken in teaspoonful doses after meals and at bedtime, it is stated by a prominent physician to give most excellent results in kidney or urinary affections, and also in rheumatism and sciatica. The mixture opens the clogged pores of the kidneys, thus assisting them in their work of filtering all waste and poisonous matter from the blood, and expelling these in the urine. To allow this poisonous matter to remain means that it will settle in the muscular tissues or joints, and cause the untold misery known as rheumatism. The mixture is composed of harmless vegetable ingredients which can be purchased at any good drug store, and mixed at home.

Anyone suffering from any of these ailments will be amply repaid for the least of so simple and highly recommended remedy.

Penhold Presbyterian Church.

A representative gathering of Penhold Presbyterian Congregation met in the Church on Wednesday, 3rd Oct. to express their sympathy with their pastor the Rev. R. Simpson in the serious loss he has sustained by the recent fire which consumed his dwelling, household effects, library, money, clothing, etc., and to devise some means of relieving the loss.

Mr. James Whyte, elder, occupied the chair and in a brief sympathetic speech expressed the deep sympathy of the entire congregation.

After reviewing the seriousness of the situation it was unanimously resolved to do all that possibly could be done to replace the comfortable home which had been so completely destroyed. A subscription list was then drawn up and passed around the meeting with the result that $800 was promised by those present. It was also recommended that the other preaching stations in Mr. Simpson's extensive field should do likewise.

As much had already been done on the personal initiative of some of the pastor's friends, (among whom were Messrs. McCallister, a motion of thanks to those who had subscribed and then the list of names was unanimously passed by the meeting. A special vote of thanks was accorded to those who had generously come forward on the day after the fire and presented Mr. and Mrs. Simpson and family with $100.00 for their private and personal needs in their tragedy.

The pastor in closing the meeting with much feeling referred to the goodwill and generosity of his loyal people, which he confessed was expected but was therefore all the more appreciated by him.

honesty of purpose" had consisted. The national debt has grown, the yearly expenditure had jumped from $38,000, 000 in 1880 to $138,000,000 in 1907. The man who proposed that they should make the non-appointment to position of members of parliament a plank in the platform had found that his honesty would not permit him to serve his country as a member of the cabinet at $7,000 a year, so he had taken the position of judge at $10,000 per year. The man who had proposed the retention of the land for the settler had himself been implicated in the Saskatchewan Valley land scandals. He reviewed point by point in the Liberal platform and showed wherein they had fallen short of their promises when in opposition. So far were they from purifying politics that the Liberal party had an organized gang to steal elections and the speaker instanced the manner in which W. T. Preston had been rewarded. The Liberals in addition to stealing Breckville and St. James had attempted to steal Belleville and many other voters and the prime minister had protected his hirelings.

In settling terms Mr. Borden headed the famous tariff commission. Three ministers in their private cars with their secretaries, their typewriters, their ginger ale and sandwiches had gone around the country at a cost of $30,000.

Continuing he pointed out how Luxon had been raised. He told how at St. Joseph, on Lake Huron a wharf had been built at a cost of $14,000, where there was no water at all. How near Bonneville, Quebec a wharf had been built at a cost of $70,000 but where no boat could come nearer than a mile and a half. In Shelburne there was a little lake where the people of the district, good Liberals all, thought that if it were connected with the sea it would make a fine harbor. They had dug the canal but the water had all run out and left the lake dry. (Applause)

He said the Dominion Government's mania for buying boats came into effect. People had long wanted a faster service between Canada and the old country. One bright minister conceived the idea of supplying one. So the government went over to Germany and bought a boat. It was named the Gauss, and was very fast, very big. It cost $30,000 and took 35 days to cross the Atlantic. They stored it away in Quebec and wouldn't let any one look at it for they were not so proud of their purchase. But finally they painted it up, changed the name and put $215,000 worth of provisions upon it, and with a crew of 33 men sent it up to find the north pole, which would be a very fine thing. They went very strange ways, into the ice north, and the 33 men away for 8 years with $215,000 worth of provisions discovered a mountain which they called Mount Laurier, and a bay which they called Prefontaine, but not the North Pole. So they wintered up there near an Eskimo village, they entertained the Eskimos, both ladies and gentlemen, gave 5 o'clock teas, etc. (Applause)

Fancy a greasy lady Eskimo in furs and oil smoking tobacco which cost $1.37 a pound, though every one else buys it for 70 cents, and waving a flag which was bought also with Government money. (Applause)

The speaker concluded with a eulogy of Mr. Borden as one of the most honorable men in public life. And he believed when the men in this Western country were given the chance at the coming election they would put honorable and honest men in power.

And so they sat in silence lapped each in the glamour of their dreams. Sharp awaking came with the abrupt entrance of Madame's mistress of the robes.

"The King," she cried, "the King is coming," and she promptly fled.

The Marquise rose almost in terror. "Quick, quick," she whispered, "you have the key."

But Louis had already entered, sulen and bored.

And again did not desert him. "Madame," he exclaimed with a matchless mixture of dismay and despair, "I am ruined. The King has discovered me."

Louis broke into a laugh. His royal and jaded humor was tickled by the comic dejection in the Vicomte's face as he shamefacedly knelt to kiss the King's hand.

"Ma foi! The gentleman should think of the lady," he said smiling, and not merely himself.

"True, sire, when the lady will think presently of the gentleman. But in this case the lady will not think of him at all—his!"

And a half-dozen, half-past-eightish sigh provoked a second royal laugh.

"I must find employment for this idle vicomte," Louis remarked to Madame, and not in your louche manner.

"I fear not, sire, the pity," Andre answered.

The King flung himself into a chair. His countenance had remastered him, and he stared at the screen daily. "Your Majesty is tired," the Marquise murmured, kneeling to slip a cushion under his head. "I will read to you something amusing."

"Not for worlds," they did not write amusing books in Paris to-day as they once did. He stared the Marquise, then at her faultless dress, and Andre observed how his hand lingered on hers as she remained kneeling by his side.

"It is only the book of life that is amusing here," she retorted with a gay nod. "Your Majesty writes a fresh page in mine every day."

"It is amusing," he asked with a faint flash of interest.

"Shall I tell you, sire, what my friend said this morning? Do you laugh, Madame, quoth she, 'when the King talks become a jest or a jest because he is the King?'"

Louis looked up. "And your answer?"

"You must guess, sire," she replied. "Because he is the King," he said gloomily.

"No, no," the King never fails to me, he replied, and he is never the King to me; he is only—she completed the sentence by a look at her heels and the suspicion of a kiss on his fingers.

"You are a foolish woman," was the royal reply. The impenetrable eyes cleared for a moment.

Andre was thrilled by the ripple of laughter that floated through the room. "Ah, sire, now you jest for the first time—absolutely for the first time!"

She rose. "Monseigneur is Vicomte," she said quickly, "you have His Majesty's permission to retire." Then as he took his leave, she turned to her friend, and she whispered softly, "and you saved us both. I shall not forget, and he shall never forget, and he shall never forget, and he shall never forget."

As the door closed Madame de Pompadour was whispering in Louis's ear and a hearty royal laugh rang out.

For in such ways do kings permit themselves to be governed.

CHAPTER XV.

The great historical buildings in Paris bear witness with eloquence and beauty to the genius and ambition of the many royal rulers who during three centuries of a wonderfully dramatic history have led a nation gifted with genius and ambition. Versailles alone is the exception, for in Versailles even the most brilliant and cold-blooded of modern historians feel at every step that the years have vanished, that he breathes the air of the grand age, that he is face to face with the monument of one historic figure and one alone—Louis XIV.

The memory of 1870; gone is the tragedy of Marie Antoinette. Alone is the stately splendour of the Galerie des Glaces, in the cold loneliness of the chapel, in the ordered magnificence of these haughty chambers, most of all in the Imperial pomp of the royal bed-room, dominates the spirit of the age.

Soileil—the King who made the Versailles the art and the science and the creed of a nation's life.

As one steps to-day into the empty stillness of that memorable Old de Bouff, the light from the oval windows seems to fall only on those white and gold doors beyond which lies the state-chamber. But wait in patience and the loneliness will vanish; the room is now crowded with the courtiers awaiting the grand levee of majesty; the events of the hour, a hundred eyes watch with feverish eagerness and have the right to pass and repeat those jealously-guarded portals, behind which monarchy, or why monarchy, captures the fate of ministers and nobles, is drawing.

"The King," said Mont Rouge to St. Benoit, "is as playful this morning as he was last night. Ah, you have not heard?" he added, and he pointed to the Duke de Richelieu was pulling off his Majesty's boots. "How many times, by the bye, Duke, has he pulled off the Bastille's asked the King. Three times, sire," Richelieu replied stiffly. "Odd numbers are unlucky," said the King in his slow way, and even Richelieu was annoyed.

"A pretty plain hint," St. Benoit remarked. "What has Richelieu been doing? Another love affair and a duel?"

"Oh, no; he was only desirous to the Pompadour to appear. That woman is itching to show that dukes can be treated like kitchen wenches."

"Perhaps. But she doesn't get her way with everyone. De Nerac has positively refused to enter her service, and the King is more pleased with him than ever."

"It is true, then, that he has been given the Cordons Bleus?" Mont Rouge demanded with a flash of jealousy.

"Quite true, the lucky fellow," answered the Duke of Pontchartrain, who had joined them, "and the extraordinary thing is that the Pompadour, who was very angry with De Nerac, jests about it last night."

"But what has De Nerac done to get the Cordons Bleus?" Mont Rouge growled.

"The rustic of a dress vexed him. It was Denise, and surely that was the Chevalier de St. Amant parting from her."

"You have heard the King's will, Mademoiselle," Andre said quickly. "Yes," she answered. "Very nicely she looked at that moment, though her manner was strangely cold."

"You do not congratulate me?"

"No."

Andre glanced at her with sharp surprise.

"After your kind words on my return," he began, "I had hoped, Mademoiselle, more for the pleasant relations than for those of any other in Versailles."

Denise made no reply; she quietly moved away.

"Denise," he broke out passionately. "Denise!"

"Mademoiselle la Marquise, if you please, Monsieur le Vicomte," she interrupted with her eyes on the door and Andre could only gaze at her in mute astonishment.

"Denise," he said, "you have had the Marquise for the future. And if you would know the reason ask your conscience, the conscience of a noble and noble soldier of France."

Andre would have spoken, but she made a gesture with her hand and he was silent.

"It is the second time," she resumed, "I have been bitterly disappointed. Our world believes that you have had the courage to refuse the temptation of that woman, that the King's reward after they were married the girl said to her fond husband, 'Oh, George—now that we are married together, I shall not betray your secret. And if you will, let my silence be due to the friendship of the past, a friendship that will be broken by my own act have severed.'"

"You deny it?" Andre asked. "That Monsieur le Vicomte, unfortunately does not make it less true. But that is not the point. I shall not betray your secret. And if you will, let my silence be due to the friendship of the past, a friendship that will be broken by my own act have severed."

"You deny it?" Andre asked. "That Monsieur le Vicomte, unfortunately does not make it less true. But that is not the point. I shall not betray your secret. And if you will, let my silence be due to the friendship of the past, a friendship that will be broken by my own act have severed."

PAUPERISM DECLINING.

Due to Better Employment During Last Year.

The half-yearly statement on pauperism in London shows a decline in the number of persons on the rates. On January 1st last the total number of persons relieved was 14,823 in London and 775,455 in the provinces.

The aggregate of 920,838 being 5,908 less than the number on Jan. 1st, 1902. The percentage of decline for the whole country was 0.6, the percentage for London alone being 0.3. The decrease in the pauperism of the urban counties corresponds with improved conditions of employment in the principal industries, particularly the engineering and cotton trades.

The building trade and coal-mining industries also, in which there had been in previous years a large amount of unemployment, particularly in the former, showed improvement. Excluding causes and deaths from London, the statement showed a decline of 3.1 per cent., but the different districts showed varying degrees of improvement.

The following table will show the following table:

Rate per 1000	Difference in rate.
West 23.5	-.02
North 23.7	-.01
East 23.9	-.01
South 23.5	-.01

In only one district was there an increase, and the biggest decrease in the east, chiefly due to a decline of .08 per cent. in Poplar.

On an average there was an increase in Crofton and Edmonton of 11 per cent. in London and 10 per cent. in the provinces. Brentford 13 per cent. and Darford 25 per cent. West Ham showed a reduction of 16 per cent., and Romford 10 per cent.

It is worthy of note that the whole class of able-bodied paupers in the previous year's figures, but those not able-bodied increased by 7.43 or 1.7 per cent. The number of paupers in the last year was the biggest decrease. A general decline in casual pauperism, amounting to 14 per cent., is noted.

WHEN YOUR HEALTH FAILS--WHAT THEN?

Better to Guard Against Such an Emergency By Keeping Vitality at High Water Mark By the Use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Good health is the capital of persons who earn their livelihood with brain and muscle.

In these days of strenuous life and keen competition there is no place for tired brains and weak body.

Success is not for the strong and alert—for those whose blood is rich and whose nerve cells are filled with vigor and energy.

It is not pleasant to contemplate what might happen with failing health and for this reason it is well to heed the first symptoms of nervous exhaustion, such as a brain lag, headache, nervous dyspepsia, sleeplessness, failure of memory and loss of power to concentrate the mind.

SOME POLITICIANS WHO GET-RICH-QUICK.
 (Mail and Empire)
 By the Blairmore town site deal, as engineered at Ottawa, a politician named, Malcolm MacKenzie was awarded, for the sum of $480, the real estate of an entire town, worth $200,000. A private, or non political citizen had settled on the property, and was entitled, under the law, to prior consideration. If his claim was not valid the town site belonged to the government. But the ministers were not going to allow the estate of the people to be lost to the person who could give a political return. The original claimant was therefore "turned down" and the land was handed over to the politician. It was in July, 1904, that the operation was completed. In August MacKenzie became the Laurier candidate for Alberta, and campaigned until November, when he was defeated.

Here we get the connection between the recipient of the unearned favor and the government. Laurier gave MacKenzie the town site, which was equivalent to $200,000 in cash. MacKenzie thereupon expended money in a contest for a seat in parliament. If elected MacKenzie would have earned his benefactor by voting for the various measures of graft that are proposed at Ottawa from time to time.

An equally interesting case is that of Mr. Adamson, M. P. This gentleman is the brother-in-law of Mr. Turfitt, a P. A. western politician, who became land commissioner under Sifton. Mr. Adamson was allotted 250,000 acres of Saskatchewan land at $1 an acre in 1902. The deal netted profits aggregating $1,750,000.

Shortly after the grant of land Adamson became a candidate for parliament, and was actually elected. He sits in the house, voting that his land deals are honest.

Since he has been in parliament another consideration has been accorded him. He was granted by Frank Oliver the Gallagher ranch, which he sold at a profit of $25,000. His brother-in-law, Mr. Turfitt, was the land commissioner when the Saskatchewan deal was pushed through in his favor. Turfitt has retired from office, and he, too, is a member of parliament, sitting next to Adamson, the man who has done so well with his land deals.

Another case that challenges attention is that of Theodore Burrows, Sifton's brother-in-law. Burrows, soon after Sifton was appointed minister of the interior, became a successful applicant for timber limits. He has now timber limits covering 478 square miles, the principal limits being awarded him on special terms. Burrows had to run for parliament. The house would not be complete without him. He entered the great assembly in 1904, and is now supporting all the schemes that are advanced by the Ottawa grafters.

The next man to enter parliament was McGregor, of McLeod. To this statesman, who was one of the Sifton coterie during the dark days in the Yukon, the government gave $80,000 acres of public land, together with a ranch of very considerable value. He and his associate made straight for London, and the concession was sold by them for the nice little sum of $50,000.

When we come to look at the $200,000 for Malcolm MacKenzie, the $1,750,000 for Adamson, the vast timber grants for Burrows, and the $50,000 for McGregor, the eastern deals seem small. Yet, they do not differ from the larger operations in principle.

Lodge, a Monoton politician, was permitted to pay $13,975 for land, and to turn the land over to the government for $24,070. He made $11,705.

Another man in Halifax paid $20,000 for land wanted by the government, and the government gave him $45,000 in round figures. He made $25,000 by the transaction, and gave $14,000 to Pearson, a lawyer, who seems to control certain party papers.

In the case instances the recipients will have to give a quid pro quo. Very likely we shall have Lodge and Pearson running for parliament at the next election.

It is very evident that while the government sweats the country, the persons to whom the money goes have to make some sort of a return.

All of them are in politics, and some of them are in parliament, giving the creator of their unearned wealth unanimous support and no end of applause.

A parliament thus constituted is a satire upon representative institutions, and a government which gives us such a parliament is a disgrace to a British country and a danger to the state.

Make This Up At Your Home.
 What will appear very interesting to many people here is the article taken from a New York daily paper, giving a simple prescription, as formulated by a noted authority, who claims that he has found a positive remedy to cure almost any case of backache or kidney or bladder derangement, in the following simple prescription, if taken before the stage of Bright's disease:
 Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces, Shake well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and again at bedtime.
 A well-known druggist here at home, when asked regarding this prescription, stated that the ingredients are all harmless, and can be obtained at a small cost from any good prescription pharmacy, or the mixture would be put up if asked to do so. He further stated that while this prescription is often prescribed in rheumatic affections with splendid results, he could see no reason why it would not be a splendid remedy for kidney and urinary troubles and backache, as it has a peculiar action upon the kidney structure, cleansing these most important organs and helping them to sift and filter from the blood the foul acids and waste matter which cause sickness and suffering. Those of our readers who suffer can make no mistake in giving it a trial.

A FAMILIAR VOICE.
 (The Edmonton Saturday News)
 A special despatch to the Red Deer News from Toronto commences: "The enticing gurgles of a certain sylvan Spring within a dell in Novre park ravine have been forever stilled. The mossy stones surrounding the cool water have been chipped away, and no longer may the picknicker elake his sandwich thirst or dabble in its depths."
 One does not need to look up the News personal columns after this to find out that the member for Red Deer is spending a few weeks at his old Ontario home.

IS CANADA A HOODOO?
 Under this head the Toronto World remarks that the action of the Alberta ranchmen in sending their cattle over a big impost to the Chicago markets opens the question of railway and corporate discrimination in Canada. And the lifting of the lid reveals many undesirable things in the Canadian shipping world. Our best lambs go to the Buffalo market. A traveller and shipper in Chicago goes to Halifax cheaper than a Toronto man.
 Why is it? What is the cause in the delay in transits of our live stock cars? The Canadian railways must regard Canada as their legitimate prey. It is time something like an organized effort by the farmers, shippers, cattle dealers, etc., were made to secure to Canadians fair play and effective service.

If the Winnipeg cattle markets are manipulated, the agricultural department at Ottawa should move some in the matter. What that department is good for, if not to get hot after just such things, we know not. Anyone can run a well organized department for some time, but it takes energy, intelligence and alertness to protect the farmer and producer. Where are we at?

THE PROPER IMMIGRATION POLICY FOR CANADA.
 Admit no one with a criminal record or criminal ancestry. Establish the same prohibition against hereditary paupers.

Bar out all sufferers from contagious or incurable diseases. Refuse permission for the formation of either racial or religious colonies.

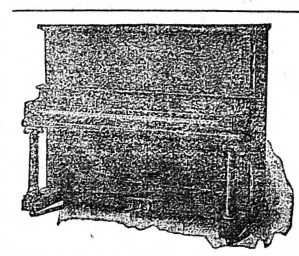

Rigidly close the doors against those who either in the present or next generation, are unlikely to inter-marry with and become part of our own people.

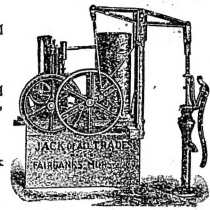

Gas at Calgary.
 A few days ago natural gas was struck near Calgary on the reserve, at a depth of 2,800 feet. This well will probably go 8000 ft. It is claimed it will be more productive than that at Medicine Hat as the pressure is enormous.

CORRECT PRUNING.
 The Right and Wrong Way Illustrated and Described.
 The question frequently arises when to prune. Among the earlier horticulturists this question was often answered as follows: Prune when your knife is sharp. This is a comparative-ly foolish notion, and follows with some plants, but where the problem involves the management of extensive commercial plantations it is not so easy to prune in this miscellaneous fashion, remarks New England Homestead. The work must necessarily be done at some particular season and carried on in a systematic manner after some definite plan.
 With most orchardists and gardeners pruning can best be done during the winter or early spring months, and where the object is the removal of small branches this season is undoubtedly quite as satisfactory as any other. In fact, pruning during late spring, about the time or just previous to the beginning of growth, is possibly advantageous with the peach, because at that season, as a rule, all injury to the animal growth has been healed, and the usual practice of removing half the annual growth would be in vain.
 With apple and pear, which suffer less from winter killing, the annual pruning can be well done in March in the north as at any other season. With the grape, however, which is likely to produce a heavy flow of sap if the pruning is delayed until late in the season, it is undoubtedly best to do the pruning during the late fall and early winter months.
 To obtain best results in removing large branches two cuts should be made—that is, the branch should be sawed off eighteen or twenty inches above the point of its origin to prevent splitting down and tearing off a considerable portion of the bark. After the weight of the branch has been lessened by cutting, the main part a second cut can be made and the stub held in position until the cut is completed. This prevents the splitting down and tearing of the bark which are likely to result from the careless removal of large branches.
 The evil results of splitting can be overcome frequently by cutting first on the under side of the limb and then upon the upper side, as shown in the second figure, so that the breaking of the tissue occurs near the middle of the wound instead of at one side. When this is the case, tearing and splitting seldom occur.

How Horses Are Fed.
 In America corn plays a very little part in the feeding of horses. Corn is the great horse feed of that country—generally fed whole—and oats are used in the diet of expensive race-horses. The timothy and clover of Canada have no place in the Antipodean horse's diet. The grass most in favor, and two or three crops a year are easily grown in the sub-tropical countries of that continent. Although a country where horses are raised as numerous as cattle here, the majority of them know the taste of corn or any other grain, the indigenous grasses of the country are the most common and best food for all stock. Where corn is fed is in the case of horses that are working hard, as those in cities and horses employed by teamsters who ply into the back country for wool, taking with them generally a load of goods for some interior storekeeper, but the vast number of horses used on sheep and cattle runs in Australia and New Zealand for stockmen and boundary riding purposes, are all innocent of the knowledge of grain in any form.
 English Clover Seeds.
 Seed selection should be practiced by every farmer in Ontario. Its benefits are familiar to all men who have leveled the college reports. It pays. That is well proven, and what pays is what every man wants to get. Much of the clover in Ontario has been full of four seeds this year, and it will grow poor this year, and more not pay to rescue the same. More of the selection of seed from a different source may be a good idea. It is said that the English seeds are a good crop this year, and that the farmers are free from weed seeds. Now, clover power of this seed, as well as the vigor of the plant, to supply pay them for any trouble they may be put to get them. It will pay to sow the best.
 Substitute For Ensilage.
 Upon a recent visit to Ontario I found that cutting hay before feeding was commonly practiced, says a writer on farm topics. It is claimed that it prevents waste, as cut hay cannot be thrown out of mangers, and the feeds can be mixed with it to the best advantage. Some farmers cut hay and cut straw together, mix the proper proportion of ground grain with it, dampen it and pile it up. In twenty-four to thirty hours it begins to heat. It is eaten greedily and makes a fine substitute for ensilage.
 Mulberries In Orchards.
 One of the characteristics claimed for the mulberry is that it fruit ripens over a period of several months. The tree is a rapid grower, and the abundance of fruit produced makes it a valuable addition to any orchard, and a few mulberry trees planted in the orchard serve as a protection to other more valuable fruits.—American Cultivator.

Contrast the reception given Hon. Frank Oliver a short time ago and the reception given R. L. Borden by the citizens of Red Deer. Actions speak plainer than words. The people are anxious for a change.

The Epworth League of the Methodist Church last Tuesday evening was very interesting. Mrs. Graves read a paper on the League Motto and Mr. James of Springvale, also delivered a short address. The League meets again to night.

Premier Rutherford is expected in town Thursday to open the new school. The minister of the Interior, the leader of the great Conservative party, and the Premier of the Province all here within two weeks shows Red Deer is being recognized as a place of importance by the leaders of the political parties in Canada.

There isn't a paper in Canada but has mentioned Mr. Borden's trip west and spoken of his visit to Red Deer among other places. It is this sort of thing that makes a town known.

A party of the Red Deer boys have arranged for a social evening and dance on Friday the 11th inst. to entertain their friends from the surrounding country districts in return for the many pleasant evenings they have enjoyed.

In conversation with J. F. Gaetz of the Central Alberta Land Co., a few days ago we learned that the company had disposed through their office at Olds no less than 22 quarter sections of land at a total valuation of $84,065 during the past six months. The manager Mr. A. W. Hall must be a hustler.

In speaking to Dr. George, who is intensely interested in the records of the Province, which he always keeps, he reports that he has not yet received the reports of the Department of Agriculture for the North West Territory, for 1905, or of Alberta 1906, although he has the reports without a break from the Department since 1888 up to the present time. What is the matter with the Department?

Our office is a sort of free congress. People of all ages, of each sex, of all political beliefs and religious creeds, come in to discuss their ills, argue questions, ask for information and seek consolation in their troubles. We do our best for them and they generally go out into the cold world feeling much refreshed. Come and see us the "latch string" is always out, chairs furnished and epitaphs improvised when necessary.

If you are a kicker and see the shadow of failure in everything that is proposed to help the town for heaven sake go out into some secluded canyon and kick your own shadow on the clay bank, and thus give men who are working to build up a town a chance. One long faced, hollow eyed, whining kicker can do more to keep away business and capital from a town than all droughts, short crops, chincho bugs, cyclones and blizzards combined.

E. M. Wilson, who recently took up mission work in the Methodist Church, returned to town last week after spending the past month in the west. He has established a regular appointment on the Raven mission at Langley's and held the second service there last Sunday. He also established an appointment in the district east of the Clearwater and service was held there a week ago Sunday. Mr. Wilson is pleased with his work and will no doubt make a success on the mission.

Councillor Tallman has been confined to the house with a severe attack of tonsillitis since Saturday last.

The regular monthly meeting of the Alberta Natural History Society will be held at Dr. Oerge's Museum Tuesday 15th Oct., 2.30 p.m.

Quite a number of young people gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Brakes as a surprise party in honor of Miss Annie Gilliland, who recently returned from a visit to Ontario.

At a meeting of the directors of the Lethbridge Electric Co. recently, the cost of light to the hotels was reduced from fourteen to twelve cents per kilowatt hour. The cost to householders was not reduced.

Chas. Reed intends enlarging the Windsor Hotel. Some twenty five rooms will be added to the west end on Mann Street. It is doubtful if there will be time to do the work this fall but it not it will be pushed in the spring.

An exciting runaway took place Saturday afternoon while the band of the Messenger Boy troupe was playing. James Cruickshank's spirit driver, attached to the bread wagon, took fright and dashed up the street turning in towards the curb in front of Mr. Hall's and tipping the wagon. The horse broke loose and dashed up street. Jim was thrown out before the rig tipped and escaped without injury. The only damage was a broken pane of glass in the wagon.

Dr. Denovan's sale took place on Saturday and the Doctor and Mrs. Denovan will move to Edmonton. By their removal from Red Deer another link connecting the present with the past will be severed. For many years they have been residents of Red Deer and have numerous friends, who will regret their departure from town. More particularly is this the case among old timers as the doctor was the only medical practitioner in the district for years and many old timers have a warm spot in their heart for both the doctor and his wife. Dr. Roundtree takes his practice here.

The Canadian Magazine for October contains a number of unusually interesting articles, particularly the ones entitled "The Dufferin Family" and "A Personality in Journalism." The latter is written by Prof. Adam Shortt, and is an appreciation of Mr. J. A. Macdonald, Editor of the Toronto Globe. Prof. Shortt gives Mr. Macdonald credit for striking the keynote of independence in journalism in Canada by adopting an independent attitude within party lines. The number contains other noteworthy contributions, including five short stories.

THE KILTIES ARE COMING.

Arrangements have just been made to bring the famous Kilties band to Red Deer on Oct. 25th when they will give two grand concerts. Mr. W. Bannerman has just leased the Massey Harris building, and will convert it into an up to date opera house. Mr. Bannerman is to be congratulated on securing such a grand attraction for the opening of his new lyric opera house. The Kilties besides having one of the greatest concert bands in the world, also carry special features that are hard to beat. They will introduce their famous male choir of 16 trained voices, 6 celebrated Scottish dancers, 5 bagpipers, soloists, etc. The Kilties have a world wide reputation having toured over 300,000 miles in Canada, United States, Mexico, and Europe. When on tour in Great Britain three years ago, they appeared twice before H. M. the King by royal command. According to arrangements two grand concerts will be given in Red Deer, also a grand regimental parade at noon in full highland costume, a sight well worth seeing, and are not soon to be forgotten. The Kilties should draw a big crowd in and out of town as it is a rare treat.
